AP* Edition by Kennedy, Cohen, Bailey

On the College Board's Approved Text list for AP* US History

Welcome to Holt McDougal's AP US History presentation of the 2010 AP version of The American Pageant 14e by the author team of David Kennedy, Liz Cohen, and Thomas Bailey. The text is on the College Board's approved list for textbooks that meet the curricular requirements for the AP US History course.

The American Pageant 14/e

The # 1 Text for AP* US History!

WHY?

- Distinctive & humorous writing style
- Key Political and Social Features
- AP* In-text Features
- AP* Ancillary Support

American Pageant remains the market leader in AP US history for a variety of reasons:

- 1) The Main reason why it continues to be number one choice for AP is because of its accessibility. The action oriented and humorous writing style keeps students interested in the reading.
- 2) The text has a strong political focus but with newer editions increasingly integrates social history to better follow criteria of the AP exam
- 3) Extensive AP in-text features and AP Ancillary support helps both teachers and students make the transition to the college-level work of an AP course

Distinctive Writing Style - Examples

Benjamin Franklin

- “He deliberately violated every norm of diplomatic behavior.” (p. 160)

John Quincy Adams

- “A chip off the old family glacier.” (p. 274)

Abraham Lincoln

- “He was no silver-spoon child of the elite.” (p. 447)

Douglas MacArthur:

- “A legend in his own mind.” (p. 939)

The Distinctive writing style is action-oriented with both humor and “drama” to convey the story and engage students in the material. Here are some notable examples from the textbook.

CONTENT FEATURES:

Examining the Evidence Boxes:

26 total inserts

- Learn about insights historians derive from a wide range of historical artifacts.
- Topics: Dress as Reform, Expansionist Stirrings South of the Border, Public Opinion Polling in the 1930s, The Shopping Mall as New Town Square
- “Conflicting Press Accounts of the March on Washington, 1963” (p. 983)

“Examining the Evidence” is a historiographical feature that presents a photograph, artifact, or brief document and demonstrates how historians analyze such evidence. It then prompts students to draw their own conclusions.

•“Conflicting Press Accounts of the March on Washington, 1963” (p. 983)

CONTENT FEATURES:

Varying Viewpoints Essays: 21 total

- Overviews of scholarly debates surrounding major historical issues
- “How Radical was the New Deal?” (p. 851)

Makers of America Boxes: 27 total

- Focus on diverse ethnic, racial, and social groups in our pluralistic society.
- “The Chinese” (p. 550)

“Varying Viewpoints” are overviews of the scholarly debates surrounding major historical issues that encourage students to think critically about disagreements among historians. These one- to two-page essays appear at the end of approximately half the chapters and synthesize the latest research.

Topics: Colonial America, Constitution, Jacksonian Democracy, Reconstruction, Was the West Really Won?

• “How Radical was the New Deal?” (p.851)

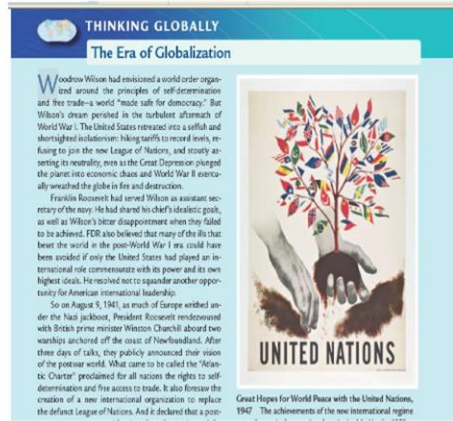

Another important feature of the program is that we continue to keep up with changes in the course description by offering more social coverage with the addition of Elizabeth Cohen to the author team, a social-cultural historian. “Makers of America” focus on the diverse ethnic, racial, and activist groups that compose America’s pluralistic society and show how different social groups impacted our nation’s history. More attention had been given to the experiences and contributions of women, law, and the national economy in the antebellum period.

• Examples of these groups are the Californios and Environmentalist groups and The Chinese (p. 550)

NEW! Thinking Globally:

12 total inserts

- Presents aspects of the American experience within a global context
- Events include: Imperial Rivalry, Revolutions towards Independence, Era of Nationalism
- More AP* Exam emphasis on US History from a global perspective

The Era of Globalization (p. 924)

NEW Global focus feature.

- Twelve new “Thinking Globally” essays, two within each of the Pageant’s six parts, present different aspects of the American experience contextualized within world history.
- Readers learn how developments in North America were part of worldwide phenomena, be it the challenge to empire in the eighteenth century, the rise of socialist ideology in the nineteenth century, or the globalization that followed World War II.
- The Era of Globalization (p. 924)

AP* In-Text Features
